AMY ROBSART'S SONG.

From London town my lover came.
Robin a Dudley was his name.
I was a rose, a rose, said he,
And gathered me from off my tree.
I was a rose, most fair and red.
I am a rose whose sweets are shed.

I would my love from London town
Had ne'er lightly ridden down.
Were there no roses there that he
Might come and pluck and shatter me?
My leaves are tear that were so green.
My leaves are wet with tears of teen.

Would God that I had never met
My love, that has heart to set
Against my breast so sharp a sword.
Would God, instead of belted lord,
That I had loved some meaner clay,
Who loved me on to judgment day.

From London town my lover came
And set a country heart aflame,
Then left it here to quench or burn
Because a queen must serve his turn.
Nay, but what boots me my disdain?
Would God my love would come again.

A Bare Faced Fad.

The fashion of the smooth face continues to increase in popularity, and mustaches are daily sacrificed to a fad which is not so well adapted to every man as a great many men evidently think. The style came from England. It became so much the proper thing in England for men to appear without hair on their faces that it was finally found necessary to forbid the practice in the army, as the loss of whiskers was spreading so rapidly that there promised to be a beardless army in a short while. Unbecoming styles of dress are unquestionably accepted when they are the mode. But it was usually thought that the selection of a mustache or a smooth face was founded on a deeper consideration of what made a man look well or the reverse. But that discrimination has been swept away now by the enthusiasm with which the unshaved lip has been declaimed as the right style.—San Francisco Argonaut.

The Peabody Fund.

George Peabody's gift of $2,500,000 for London workingmen's houses has increased to $6,000,000 in the 24 years since his death. Last year the trustees of the fund provided 11,367 rooms, besides bathrooms, lavatories and laundries; 19,554 persons occupied them. The death rate of infants in the buildings is 4 per cent below the average for London.

Thousands of women are cast-up dead on the shores of life because of their own ignorance or neglect. No woman can be free from pain, or safe from the ever-threatening breakers of death, who neglects to take proper care of the organs that constitute her womanhood. A woman who neglects her womanly self will be sickly, nervous, pain-racked and fretful, and approaching maternity will be a menace of the grave. It is easy for a woman to avoid this suffering and danger.

Wise women know that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a marvelous remedy for those troubles that make a woman's life miserable, and fill the period of prospective motherhood with fears. It is the discovery of an eminent and skillful specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y. Over 90,000 women have testified to the almost miraculous action of this wonderful remedy. It works directly on the organs distinctly feminine. It makes them strong and healthy. It cures all weakness and disease. It prepares for wifehood and motherhood. It insures baby's health and makes its advent easy and nearly painless. Druggists sell it. Nothing else is "just as good."

Mrs. G. A. Connor, of Alleghany Spring, Montgomery Co., Va., writes: "My daughter, aged 15 years, had a goitre coming on her neck and it disfigured her very much. I am happy to say that it has disappeared after the use of one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is in plain English. Contains 1,008 pages and over 300 illustrations. If you want a copy, paper-covered, send 21 one-cent stamps, to cover the cost of mailing only, to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. If you prefer cloth cover, send 31 stamps.

WHEN THE SULTAN GOES TO ISPAHAN.

When the Sultan Shah Zaman
Goes to the city Ispahan,
Even before he gets so far
As the place where the clustered palm trees are,
At the last of the thirty palace gates,
The flower of the harem, Rose-in-Bloom,
Orders a feast in his favorite room—
Glittering squares of colored ice,
Sweetened with syrop, tinctured with spice,
Creams and cordials and sugared dates,
Syrian apples, Othmanee quinces,
Limes and citrons and apricots
And wines that are known to eastern princes.
And Nubian slaves and smoking pots
Of spiced meats and costliest fish
And all that the curious palate could wish
Pass in and out of the cedarn doors.
Scattered over mosaic floors
Are anemones, myrtles and violets,
And a musical fountain throws its jets
Of a hundred colors into the air.
The dusk sultana loosens her hair
And stains with a henna plant the tips
Of her pointed nails and bites her lips
Till they bloom again but, alas, that rose
Not for the sultan buds and blows,
Not for the Sultan Shah Zaman
When he goes to the city Ispahan!

Then, at a wave of her sunny hand,
The dancing girls of Samarkand
Glide in like ships from fairyland,
Making a sudden mist in air
Of fleecy veils and floating hair
And white arms lifted. Orient blood
Runs in their veins, shines in their eyes.
And there, in this eastern paradise,
Filled with the breath of sandalwood
And Khoten musk and aloes and myrrh,
Sits Rose-in-Bloom on a silk divan,
Sipping the wines of Astrakhan,
And her Arab lover sits with her.
That's when the Sultan Shah Zaman
Goes to the city Ispahan.

Now when I see an extra light
Flaming, flickering on the night
From my neighbor's casement opposite
I know as well as I know to pray,
I know as well as a tongue can say,
That the innocent Sultan Shah Zaman
Has gone to the city Ispahan.
—Thomas Bailey Aldrich.

IN A PUNT.

One evening, when I had returned all alone and very weary, painfully pulling my heavy boat, which I used every night, I paused a few seconds to take breath near the edge of some reeds. The weather was glorious, the moon was radiant, the river sparkled, the air was cool and sweet. This tranquillity tempted me, and I thought it would be very pleasant to smoke my pipe in this place. The action followed the thought. I seized my anchor and cast it into the river. The punt, which floated with the current, drifted as far as the end of its chain, and then stood still. I seated myself in the stern on my sheepskin as comfortably as possible.

I heard nothing, not a sound, only at intervals I imagined I heard a slight, almost inaudible, plash of the water against the shore, and I saw clusters of tall reeds which assumed surprising shapes and seemed at intervals to stir. The river was perfectly quiet, but I felt agitated by the extraordinary stillness which surrounded me. All creatures—the frogs and toads, those nocturnal singers of the marshes—were silent. Suddenly at my right, close to me, a frog croaked. I shuddered. It ceased, and I heard nothing more and resolved to smoke to divert my mind. Yet, although I was a notorious and confirmed smoker, I could not smoke. With a second puff, I changed my mind and stopped.

I began to recite verses. The sound of my voice was painful. Then I stretched myself out in the bottom of the boat and watched the sky. For some time I remained at ease, but soon light movements of the boat disturbed me. It seemed as if it was making gigantic lurches, touching alternately the two banks of the river, then I thought that some being or invisible force drew it gently to the bottom of the water, then, raising it, let it fall once more. I was tossed about as though in the midst of a tempest. I heard sounds around me. I rose with a bound. The water was gleaming. All was quiet.

I saw that my nerves were somewhat shaken, and I determined to be off. I pulled at the chain, the punt began to move; then I felt a resistance. I pulled harder, but the anchor did not come. It had caught on something at the bottom of the river, and I could not lift it. I once more commenced to pull, but in vain. Then with my oars I turned the boat up stream in order to change the position of the anchor. This was useless; it still held fast. I was seized with anger and shook the chain furiously. Nothing moved. I sat down disbursed and began to reflect upon my position.

I could not think of breaking the chain or of separating it from the boat, for it was very heavy and riveted in the bow to a piece of wood thicker than my arm. But as the weather was still very fair, I thought that I should not remain long without encountering some fisherman who would come to my relief. My mishap had calmed me. I sat down, and at last was able to smoke my pipe. I had a bottle of rum. I drank two or three glasses and was compelled to laugh at my situation.

It was very warm, so that I could, if necessary, without great discomfort, pass the night in the beautiful starlight. Suddenly a soft rap sounded against the side of the boat. I started, and a cold sweat froze me from head to foot. This sound doubtless came from some piece of wood borne by the current; but it was enough, and I was again possessed by a strange nervous agitation. I grasped the chain and strained with a desperate effort. The anchor held firm. I sat down exhausted.

Meanwhile the river had gradually become covered by a very thick white mist which hung very low over the water, so that, standing, I could no longer see the river, or my feet, or the boat, but only the tops of the reeds, and in the distance the lowland, white in the moonlight, and from it great black spots, formed by clumps of Lombardy poplars, arose in the sky. I was wrapped to my waist as if in a muslin sheet of singular whiteness, and fantastic visions came to me.

I fancied that some one whom I could not distinguish was trying to climb into my boat, and that the river, hidden in this opaque mist, must be filled with these strange beings who swam around me. I felt a horrible disquietude; my temples were tightly bound; the beating of my heart almost choked me, and, losing control of myself, I thought of saving myself by swimming, but immediately this idea made me shudder with fear. I could see myself lost, wandering at random in that thick fog, in the midst of the grasses and reeds from which I could not free myself, quivering with fear, unable to see the shore or to find my boat, and I imagined I could feel myself drawn by my feet to the very bottom of this black water.

Indeed, as I should have been compelled to struggle against the current for at least 500 yards before reaching a point free from grass and rushes where I might gain a foothold, there were nine chances out of ten that I should not be able to find my way in this obscurity, and that I should be drowned, good swimmer as I was.

I tried to reason with myself. I determined not to be afraid, but there was something in me besides my will, and this other thing was afraid. I asked myself what there was to fear. My brave I jeered at my poltroon I, and never so well as on that day have I understood the conflict of the two beings that exist in us—the one willing, the other resisting, and each in turn prevailing.

This foolish and inexplicable fear continually increased till it became terror. I remained immovable, with wide open eyes and expectant ear. Of what? I knew not in the least, but of something terrible. I believe that if a fish had thought of springing out of water, as often happens, no more would have been needed to make me fall stiff and insensible.

Nevertheless, by a violent effort, I succeeded in gradually recovering my lost reason. I took again my bottle of rum and drank deep draughts. Then the idea occurred to me, and I began to shout with all my strength, turning successively to the four points of the horizon. When my throat was absolutely paralyzed, I heard a dog barking in the distance.

I drank again and stretched myself at full length on the bottom of the boat. I remained thus for perhaps an hour, perhaps two, without sleeping, with eyes wide open, and with terrors around me. I dared not rise, yet I wished intensely to do so. I put it off from minute to minute. I said to myself, "Come, stand up," and I was afraid to make a movement. At last I raised myself with infinite precautions, as if my life depended on the slightest sound I might make, and looked over the side of the boat.

I was dazzled by the most marvelous, the most astonishing sight that could possibly be seen. It was one of those phantasmagoria of fairyland, one of those visions related by voyagers who return from afar, and which we hear without believing.

The mist, which for two hours before was floating on the river, had gradually receded and gathered on the river banks. Leaving the stream entirely clear, it had formed on each shore on [illegible] seven yards in height, which [illegible] beneath the moon with the superb brilliancy of snow. Thus but a thing was visible save the river flashing with fiery lights. Between these two white hills of mist, and high overhead hung full and large a majestic, luminous moon in the midst of a black sky dotted with stars.

All the creatures of the water were awake. The frogs were croaking furiously, while at intervals, now at the right, now at the left, I heard the short, monotonous, melancholy note which the ringing voices of the toads uttered to the stars. Assuredly I was no longer afraid. I was surrounded by a scene so extraordinary that the most striking singularities had no power to astonish me.

How long this lasted I know not, for I had ended by falling asleep. When I opened my eyes, the moon had set, the sky was covered with clouds, the water rippled mournfully, the wind was blowing, it was cold, and the darkness was profound.

I drank what remained of my rum, then I listened, shivering with cold, to the rustling of the reeds and the sinister sound of the river. I tried to see, but I could not distinguish the boat nor even my hands, which I held before my eyes.

Gradually, however, the thick darkness diminished. Suddenly I seemed to feel a shadow gliding very near me. I uttered a cry and a voice answered. It was a fisherman. I called to him. He drew near, and I told him of my mischance. He then pulled his boat alongside mine, and we both strained at the chain. The anchor did not move. Day dawned, somber, gray, rainy, cold—one of those days which bring one gloom and misfortune.

I perceived another boat. We hailed it. The man who rowed it united his efforts with ours. Then, little by little, the anchor yielded. It came up but slowly and burdened with a considerable weight. At length we saw a dark mass, and we drew it into my boat.

It was the body of an old woman with a stone fastened to the neck.—Guy de Maupassant.

Homes Under the Ground.

In the salt district in Cheshire, England, the brine has been pumped so continuously out of the earth that the land has settled very considerably. The houses naturally sink with the earth, and in some of the streets in Northwich only the roofs are visible. The houses are inhabited, although the rooms are underground. In a great many cases additional stories have been added, so that by living in the upper rooms the residents may have some light and air. The roadways sink, too, but are kept up to the proper level by the government.—New York Sun.

He Wondered Why.

Miss Oldfriend—I declare, I begin to feel that I am growing old. It's really unpleasant.

Mr. B. Sharpe—Yes, dear. It must be especially so for one who has been young so long.

(And he wondered why she was offended.)—Boston Globe.

Mark Twain and Lincoln.

Perhaps it were as well, says Charles Miner Thompson in The Atlantic, to attribute the popularity of Abraham Lincoln to his jokes as the vogue of Mark Twain to his extravagant foolery. In the conventional sense, Mark Twain is no more a literary artist than, in the conventional sense, Lincoln was a gentleman. But, in spite of lack of polish, Lincoln was great. May not Mark Twain, the writer, in spite of his crude literary manners, be great also? The mere possibility ought to be enough in itself to secure him sympathetic and serious consideration.

Provoking.

Friend—Hello, Grumbleton! What's the matter, old man?

Grumbleton—Matter enough! I was in that collision on the railway the other day, and I'm blowed if I wasn't the only one in the compartment who wasn't injured, and I've insured in the Accidental for the last three years too. It's enough to provoke a saint."—Pick Me Up.

Some idea of the magnitude of the coal resources of Huerfano county, Colo., may be formed when it is stated that there are about 40,000 acres, and each acre contains 100,000 tons, or a total of 4,000,000,000 tons—an amount almost beyond comprehension.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF FARMERS.

The silver members of the Senate and House of Representatives have decided to support an amendment to the tariff bill providing for an export bounty on agricultural products. They believe the farmer is entitled to some benefit from the tariff and that it is but just to compensate him by a bounty on what he produces for export for the import duty on articles which he is obliged to purchase.

The wheat, corn, cotton and pork exported from the United States maintain the balance of trade in our favor. Last year this balance amounted to about $230,000,000, and with the exception of $80,000,000 worth of silver bullion, it was derived from the sale of farm products in foreign countries. Not one of these products is benefitted by the tariff, as they have to be shipped out of the country to find a market in competition with similar products from all parts of the world. The farmers of Washoe, Humboldt, Douglass and Elko, and of Honey Lake valley, some of whom are now shipping wheat to Port Costa, must sell that grain at Liverpool prices, less transportation and other charges. No person endowed with common ordinary sense believes for a moment that the import duty of twenty-five cents a bushel on wheat, proposed by the Dingley bill, would add one cent to the price of that wheat at any shipping point in Nevada or California, because it must be shipped out of the country to find a market and the price paid for what is shipped regulates that of what is used at home. Now, an export bounty on what is shipped abroad will enhance the price at home, and thus benefit the farmer.

Though politicians endeavor to make the farmer believe that he is benefitted by tariff, experience teaches him the contrary. He knows that there is no wheat, corn, cotton or pork imported into the United States, but that large quantities of these commodities are exported, consequently a duty of one dollar a pound would not advance the price of any of them one cent. He also knows that the implements he uses on his farm, though manufactured in the United States, are by reason of the tariff, sold at a less price in foreign countries than they are at the factories. He also knows that by reason of the tariff he has to pay more for the clothes which he and his family wear and the sugar which they consume while the tariff does not increase the price of anything he produces. To equalize the burden of the tariff the silver men propose to pay a bounty on what the farmer produces for export and thus enables him to pay the enhanced prices caused by the duty on many articles which he has to purchase.

If the trusts would act upon the principle of "live and let live" instead of insisting upon legislation that enriches a few at the expense of the many the country would be more prosperous, but if they did that they would go out of existence.

THE GAZETTE'S "MARE'S NEST."

The Gazette, like the Sunday school story of the mountain, has "labored and brought forth a mouse," in its criticisms of the Asylum management. It refers to the JOURNAL'S soft impeachment of "political prejudice," and rolls that sweet morsel under its literary tongue with evident satisfaction. The JOURNAL seeks no controversy with the Gazette regarding the Superintendent of the Asylum; he is capable of taking care of himself and no doubt he will, and the JOURNAL congratulates the Gazette that it has even accepted the JOURNAL'S suggestion and in its article has criticised the Board of Commissioners for the care of the Indigent Insane and the State Board of Examiners as well as the Superintendent, but why not go further and admit a personal predjudice or an undue influence instead of an absorbing interest in the public weal. Does the Gazette wish to go into the details of hides sold, or chairs and other furniture and supplies purchased outside of the State under a Republican administration for State institutions, necessitating a law prohibiting such purchases to be passed by a late legislature? If so, the JOURNAL will publish certain bills now on file in the State Controller's office, besides other data.

OSCAR WILDE will, according to London dispatches, be released from prison this morning between 6:30 and 7 o'clock, his term of imprisonment expiring at that time. As yet he has made no plans for the future, but expects to resume literary work. For the time being he says he will leave his destiny to a few faithful friends and be governed by their advice.

CONGRESSMAN NEWLANDS has secured a change in the mail service between St. George, Utah, and St. Thomas, Nevada, so as to include Overton on one trip each week. The matter was called to his attention by Senator Denton of Lincoln Co. Mr. Newlands untangled the Gold Creek Postoffice matter, and had the commission issued for the new Postmaster at that place.

JOHN WANAMAKER, President Harrison's Postmaster General, is getting restive. He contributed liberally to Mr. Hanna's campaign fund and received no office in return. He is now among the loudest of the calamity howlers, and declares that "there is no improvement in the wretched times."

WAR NEWS.

DEATH OF A VETERAN SHOWMAN.

Stewart of Nevada Will Introduce an Amendment to the Tariff Bill.

The Greco-Turkish War.

ATHENS, May 18.—A private telegram received this morning announces that the Greeks abandoned Almyros, which is now occupied by 1,500 Turks. General Smolenski retreated on Kephalosi. Colonels Vassos and Libritis start to the front to-day with the whole garrison of Athens. The Greeks have also abandoned Domokos.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 18.—There was a sudden and unexpected change in the political situation shortly before noon to-day. Russia quietly showed her hand, thereby forcing Germany and Turkey out of the game, to all intents and purposes. Last night and early this morning Turkey, supported by Germany, was practically defying Russia, France, Austria, Great Britain and Italy.

She was insisting upon the annexation of Thessaly in addition to a huge war indemnity, and seemingly was determined to march upon Athens. The ministers received official advices from Sofia to-day announcing that orders had been issued for the partial mobilization of the Bulgarian army, possibly at the instigation of Russia. There was a hurried consultation of the ministers. The war party was for further defiance, but in the end Pacific counsels seemed to have prevailed, for at 11:35 A. M. orders were telegraphed to Edhem Pasha to cease hostilities. Peace negotiations will now be undertaken in real earnest, and the Greeks are most likely to be spared further humiliation.

LONDON, May 18.—The officials of the British Foreign office confirm the report that the Turkish commanders received orders to arrange with the Greek commanders for an armistice.

ATHENS, May 18.—General Smolenski's brigade has been ordered to proceed to Neamizili, whence it will be conveyed in transports to Stylis, on the Gulf of Lamia to rejoin the remainder of the Greek army. It is officially stated that the return of the troops of Crown Prince Constantine towards the Othry mountains was effected in good order. The entire Greek lossess were 220 men, including many officers. The Turkish loss is said to be a thousand. The Greek eastern squadron is lying off Neamisille to protect the embarkation of the troops. The Government has renewed her protest to the representatives of the Powers against the attack by the Turkish troops at Domokos after Greece had unreservedly placed her interests in the hands of the Powers.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, May 18.—The President to-day sent to the Senate the nomination of William W. Morrow of California for the United States Circuit Judge.

In the Senate this afternoon Stewart of Nevada gave notice of an amendment he would offer to the Tariff bill, providing that there shall be at all times a reserve fund in the Treasury of $50,000,000; that whenever the available balance shall exceed the said sum, the Secretary of the Secretary of the Treasury shall invest the surplus in United States bonds; that when less is in the Treasury he shall issue legal tender non-interest bearing notes to make up the deficiency, said notes to be paid out of the surplus, or if there be insufficient coin to meet the obligations through the ordinary sources of revenue, he shall exchange silver certificates for the coin in the Treasury for their redemption.

The Morgan Cuban resolution was taken up by the Senate at 2 o'clock. Mason of Illinois spoke in its support. He read President McKinley's message to prove that a State of war exists in Cuba. "If there is no war, there ought to be one with us," he said. "Americans in Cuba need to be defended with bayonets as well as bread."

Mason said that he did not believe that the Cuban resolution meant war, but that if anyone's protest meant war let it come.

Hoar of Massachusetts spoke in opposition to the resolution, counseling temperate action.

An Old Showman Dies Suddenly.

EUREKA, Cal., May 18.—D. G. Waldron, manager of the Zera Specialty Company, which played at the Occidental Pavilion last night, was found dead in bed at the Vance House this morning. Death was due to heart disease. He was a native of New Hampshire, 64 years old, and had been in the show business for forty years.

The California Hale & Norcross Suit.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Judge Belcher sustained the demurer to the complaint in the quo warranto suit of George W. Grayson et al. against M. W Fox et al. to oust them from office as directors of the Hale & Norcross Mining Company, holding that the law applies only to public and not to private corporations.

Governor Budd Has Durrant's Case Under Advisement.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—Governor Budd has temporarily ceased the investigation of the Durrant case and gone to Stockton. He has all the evidence in the Lamont case, and the transcript of the testimony in the Williams case will be forwarded him at Sacramento. It is doubtful if he will render a decision on Friday as intended, as the mass of evidence to be considered will consume a good deal of time.

The Fair-Craven Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—David M. Caryalho, the New York handwriting expert, was the principal witness examined to-day in the trial of the Angus-Craven suit before Judge Slack. A number of words in the pencil will were picked out by the witness, who illustrated on a blackboard for the benefit of the jurors various minute discrepancies which led him to believe them to be simulated.

TELEGRAPHIC NOTES.

The Comptroller of the Currency has issued a call on the National Banks for a statement of their condition at the close of business on Friday, May 14th.

A Well-Known Young Man.

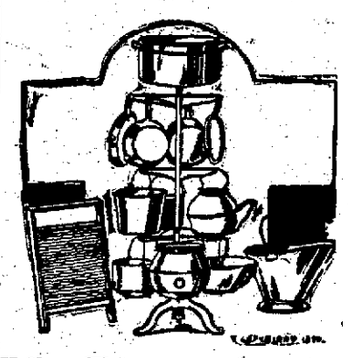

Mr. Ed. Lachman is one of the best known young men in Reno. The following statement will explain itself:

"RENO, September 4, 1896.

"On Saturday last, while wheeling down the steep grade beyond the Mound House, I had a fall which severely sprained the muscles and tendons about my right hip and so bruised my knee that it was swollen, discolored and painful to the touch. That evening I procured a bottle of Trib and applied it. The next day I could walk and ride easily, and after using Trib twice a day for four consecutive days I was completely cured. I never before knew the value of a good liniment. I shall not be without a bottle of Trib hereafter. Use my name if you see fit. Trib is a a good article, the knowledge of which I am willing to aid in spreading. EDMUND D. LACHMAN."

The above was written to the Trib Company eight months ago. Mr. Lachman says that the cure has proved permanent, and that many of his acquaintances have to his knowledge used Trib with advantage.

Hollow Ware

should be purchased only at a reliable store. If the quality of the iron is not of standard grade there are defects in the castings. Defects means burnt spots in the iron and burnt spots mean spoiled dinners. Our hollow ware may cost a trifle more than a poorer grade, but it more than earns its cost in the length of service and satisfaction.

OUR STATE LINE TOWN.

General Items of Interest—The School—Miscellaneous.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—Verdi in its spring garb presents a superior appearance to a good many mountain towns of its size. Verdi seems to be exempt from the presence of hard times, and why? Simply because it harbors no business places in excess of the actual demands of its community.

Its population must, also, be on the increase, for ten new buildings are standing in places that were rough and undulating plats of sagebrush not more than a year ago; and not one vacant dwelling house can be found.

The Depot Hotel, which stood idle for a long time, is once more fully occupied, by new men throughout. The hotel portion is run by John Blum of Reno, who is the local agent for Becker's celebrated "Silver Ribbon" lager beer.

Postmaster C. B. Carter has removed his office to the east end of the building occupied by S. R. Kendall, another Reno man, who conducts a confectionary and bakery in connection with a general notion store. Kendall, at present is acting postmaster. In the west end, W. A. Hanna has fitted up an elegant barber shop.

There was also a large addition made last Winter, to Oliver O. Lonkey's box-factory, to create room for an increased working force, necessitated by an increased demand for fruit boxes.

The arrival within the last two months of five new pianos, furnished by the Pommer piano company of Sacramento, with Geo E. Green as agent, and of five Waverly bicycles, points to a certain degree of prosperity. So much for improvements.

To complete the happiness of the community, good water works owned by the town, must eventually become an imperative necessity, in spite of the S. P. "Octopus," which at the very moment when success seemed imminent, put its contemptible but supreme stamp of disapproval upon the beneficiary scheme.

THE SCHOOL.

The school question has more or less been a vexatious one, particularly during the interim, occuring between the occupancy of the principal's chair by Hon. F. A. Norcross and E. E. Caine, both of Reno. Lack of discipline was the bone of contention, or rather discontent between parents and trustees, resulting in detriment to the teacher, as educational qualifications were never called into question. At any rate, the present teacher has succeeded in pleasing all parties concerned for a period of nearly four years, and the tenure of his office depends upon his own pleasure. Professor E. E. Caine, a graduate of both the Reno High School and the Nevada University, commands the respect of all the community. A visit to his school at once discloses the fact that during teaching hours he wields a perfect control over his pupils, while at recess he is a boy among the boys, playing ball or marbles with them, also participating in an occasional foot race.

He has an able assistant in Miss J. V. Jamison, likewise a graduate of our State University.

There are 95 enrolled children, with an average attendance of fully as many per centum.

To recur to Mr. Caine; his expeditiousness in disposing of so many studies in so many different grades of his class, invites the admiration of his many visitors at once.

His aim is to fit his pupils for a practical every day vocation. He lays particular stress upon good penmanship, spelling and composition. History and geography are made pleasurable to the class. He has an effective method of his own of teaching mental arithmetic and algebra. As to literature—Longfellow constitutes the principal author; and verse, so generally distasteful to children, has received an impetus with the latter, in this, that Mr. Caine explains the metric system thoroughly, wisely choosing poetry written in the hexameters, constituting the most buoyant and pleasing rhythm of all.

The present term of school will expire when the following five scholars will graduate, viz: Dora Hill, Loretta Jackson, Arthur Condon, Owen Stackpole and Harry Stackpole.

MISCELLANEOUS.

E. L. King, the R. R. operator, is quite at home in his new place, which he has creditably filled for the last two months.

There is a rumor rampant to the effect that Verdi will soon have a much needed new depot.

Geo. Campbell and S. M. Wiley, both of Reno, have removed into close proximity to each other upon ranches near Verdi.

Laherty and Mitchell will begin operations at their new saw mill, three miles due west of Verdi, at the end of this week.

The Lewis Bro's. mill at Shady Grove is already running and the steam wagons will resume their regular trips as soon as the grade to Sardine Valley becomes passable.

As to religious matters, the wave of baptism that struck this town during last summer and fall, which in all likelihood was due to the popularity of Rev. Freeman, the stalwart minister of the Baptist Church of Reno, has for the present subsided, as the waters of the Truckee are a little too icy and high.

Frank Delaven, the popular butcher, will take charge of Lonkey's butcher shop on some day of the coming week. Eli LaChappelle is rapidly recovering. Although still on crutches he is able to put the foot of his broken leg on the ground. J. L. Gauthier is lending a helping hand to Jim Foxwell, who is slightly under the weather. The genial Billy Cobb is as full of stories as ever, his latest yarn is about a doctor, and a piano tuner. For particulars apply on premises.

A Communication From Dr. Stubbs.

NEVADA STATE UNIVERSITY,
RENO, NEV., May 18, 1897.

To the editor of the "Silver State," Winnemucca, Nevada: DEAR SIR:—I have just read your editorial condemning the University Faculty for inviting Mr. John J. Valentine, President of the Wells, Fargo Express Company, and Mr. Irving M. Scott, President of the Union Iron Works, both of San Francisco, and beg leave to say that you have written under a misapprehension of the facts.

Mr. Valentine has been associated for many years with Christian work among and for young men of the city, and has given abundantly of his time and money to this great cause. The Faculty wished to invite not a minister of the gospel, but a business man and a man of affairs to talk to the youth of the University on the Sunday before Commencement Day. Mr. Valentine's address will have no reference to political affairs and will be no less acceptable to the editor of the Silver State than to the young people of the University.

Mr. Irving M. Scott is the President and manager of one of the great industrial establishments of the United States and has accepted the invitation to make the commencement address on the subject of "Technical and Industrial Education," which touches closely the scientific departments, such as the School of Mines, the School of Mechanics and the School of Engineering of the Nevada State University.

It is to the honor of these men and others like them that they will turn aside from their business enterprises to contribute to the educational welfare of a neighboring State. And there is no reason to justify the faultfinding contained in your article.

The University teaching and influence is in full accord with the views of the majority of the people of this State on the silver question and is doing the educational work entrusted to it with care and wisdom. There are the best of reasons why the Silver State and all other newspapers should give earnest and intelligent and honest support to the University, which is conferring honor upon the commonwealth as well as imparting stability to the intellectual, social and moral life to the State.

There are no secrets about the University management or its business affairs. Any good citizen may receive authentic and reliable information for the asking. I have the honor to remain, Very respectfully yours,

J. E. STUBBS, President.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturers Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a cough remedy. J. D. Brown, proprietor of St. James Hotel, Fort Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrill, Baldwinsville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail, and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs. Hemming, 222 E, 25th street, Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of croup because it instantly relieves. Free trial bottles at S. J. Hodgkinson's drug store

A Heavy Hail Storm.

Frank Heinz, who has a farm near Alkali Lake at the head of Long Valley, was in town yesterday. He reports a heavy hail storm as having taken place in his part of the country on Saturday. It seemed to strike the country in streaks, hail falling to the depth of three inches in some places and a perfect flood of water on every hand. His fruit trees, current bushes and vegetables were badly cut down, and the hail killed some thirty chickens before he could get them housed. He says that for about half an hour the storm was terrific.

The Bell Fund.

The matinee on Monday netted the High School bell fund $43 75. The amount was placed to the credit of the fund in the Washoe County Bank. Principal Bray and the corps of teachers of the public school desire to thank the Reno Dramatic Company, as well as all friends who aided in the project. It will cost about $150 to purchase the new bell and put it in place, and it is expected that nearly all of the balance will be raised at the entertainment on the 28th inst.

The Vlavi Cause,

It is impossible to take Vlavi into the system without benefit. It is purely vegetable and as a nerve and tissue builder has no equal. It can be used with perfect safety by the most delicate, and is used upon the smallest children.

Patrons of the remedy can consult our physicians free of charge. I will take pleasure in explaining its various uses to all who may call.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

Celebrated for its great leavening strength and healthfulness. Assures the food against alum and all forms of adulteration common to the cheap brands.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

POWER FROM OYSTER SOUP.

How an Ingenious Locomotive Engineer Saved His Train and Passengers.

He was more than an ordinarily accomplished liar for an amateur, and they all knew it when they asked him for a story.

"I can tell you how I once ran an engine and saved a trainload of people with an oyster stew if you want to know, but I don't think of anything more exciting than that," he said apologetically.

"That's good enough," they all declared. "Give us that."

"All right, then, here goes," he said as he settled back in his chair. "I was then engineer on a road that ran for a long distance through the forests of northern Wisconsin, and we were frequently bothered by forest fires. They were particularly bad at the time I speak of. One day I had run through one big blaze, only to find that there was a bigger one ahead. The worst of it was we were low on water, and there was no chance to fill the tank without dashing through the fire ahead of us. I sent the fireman out to see if we had enough to make the run, but he came back and told me the boiler was almost dry.

"I was puzzled for awhile. It was death to all of us I knew to stay there, but how to get out was the question. Suddenly a happy thought struck me. There was a milk car just behind the first baggage, and I made for it. 'How much milk have you got?' I says to the fellow in charge. 'About 40 cans, I guess,' he answered. 'Why do you ask?' 'Never mind,' says I. 'What's that in those cans in the corner?' 'Oysters,' he answered. 'But why do you want to know?' 'Never you mind,' I told him, and then I ordered the other train hands who had come up to see why we had stopped to tote that milk and those oysters up to the engine.

"They did it in spite of the kicking of the milkman, and when they had brought them up I ordered them all chucked into the tank. The conductor came up, too, and declared it was a funny notion to be making oyster stew in an engine boiler, when we were in danger of being burned alive, but I soon convinced him that it was necessary if we did not want to stay there and roast.

"Well, we finally dumped in all the milk and all the oysters and started ahead. You ought to have smelled the steam that came back into that engine cab. It would have made you think of an old time church festival. Whew! How that soup did smell! It made the engine jump, though, and that was all we wanted. We got up a great head of steam in no time, and the way we plunged through that next fire belt was a caution. As we pulled up at the station just beyond I opened up and began to whistle. A great cloud of oyster soup or vapor shot into the sky, of course, and didn't come down till we were far out of sight. Then it settled like a chicken—oysters, soup and all. Everybody noticed it, of course, and there was a country scientist in the town who was sure it was the greatest phenomenon of the age. It was raining oyster soup up there he was sure, and the next issue of the weekly papers were full of it—not the soup, but the news of it. After the residents up that way had all swallowed it—not the soup, but the story—we told them about it, and that was the silliest looking scientist I ever saw."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Reversing Nature.

The reversibility of the physical processes of nature has latterly been the subject of interesting comment. Lord Kelvin, for example, has been credited with saying that all of them, no matter how complex they might appear to the human senses, consist in reality of the motions of invisible molecules, and if, therefore, by some means, all these molecules could, at the same time, be made to move in exactly the opposite direction, and each with the same velocity that it possessed at the moment, all the world would begin and continue to move backward; waterfalls would flow up the sides of cliffs, rivers would run upward from the sea, rain would rise, full blown flowers would shrink into buds and plants dwindle into seedlings, man himself would become young again, passing from old age to infancy. Just what kind of pictures such a topsy-turvy world would present may be seen with a kinetoscope running backward. Professor Quecroult, according to report, has made observations in this line, and some time ago communicated them to the French Academy of Science.—Cassier's Magazine.

What They Said Wouldn't Read Well.

"Jim Scorcher has just returned from a bicycle ride around the world. He is going to write a book about it."

"What is he going to call it?"

"People I have run up against."—Odds and Ends.

THE President will not officially admit that a State of war prevails in Cuba, but he wants $50,000 appropriated to keep American citizens who are herded by Weyler's hirelings from starving. What guarantee does Weyler give that he would distribute provisions among those whom he prevents from making a living?

MUSIC AND THE HAIR.

The Effect of Vibrations Upon the Covering of the Head.

In a recent scientific assemblage a discussion took place upon the influence of sleep in skin diseases. One of the gentlemen who took part stated in his criticism of the paper which had been read that one might as well talk of the influence of music upon the growth of the hair. It would seem that the suggestion of a possible connection thus thrown out in a jesting way has been taken seriously. At least a correspondent of Le Temps has made the discovery that music of certain kinds does in reality prevent the hair from falling, while that produced by certain instruments has the most disastrous effects in causing rapid development of baldness. He finds that while composers are as prone as others to lose their hair at an early age those who play their compositions upon the piano preserve, if they do not acquire, a luxuriant growth of hair. On the other hand, wind instruments, and especially the cornet and trombone, are fatal to hirsute adornment The violoncello and the harp keep the hair in pretty well, but the flute cannot be depended upon to preserve a strong growth after the fiftieth year of age.

A number of pianists, including Paderewski, are cited in confirmation of the pronounced influence of piano music. It has been admitted for some time that music has a certain therapeutic worth, and it will be recalled that Dr Ferrand presented a report to the French academy on the physiological influence of music, pointing out in what ways it could be employed with therapeutic aims. Subsequently Dr Betzchinsky reported an instance of night terrors in a child of 8 years, who was cured by having played to it each night music of a calming nature written in a minor key. A test was made after a few nights by omitting the music, and that night alone the child had an attack.

It has not as yet been determined just what key is most favorable to the prevention of an early bald state Probably a reasonable way of settling the disputed point would be to make a few ... on dogs, ... is proving a ... for different strains and avoid... ... to which some pa... ... of refined tastes might be sub... How a Good Bow Is Made.

May I tell the history of my best bow, the dark one nearest the wall? Plaything, the newspaper wise man named the like, in comparison with a five foot bois d'arc (he called it hickory) segment of a hogshead hoop, light a bow, in the hand of a half naked Sioux buck It came from a yew tree of Spain to the London workshop, a billet in the rough, but to be split out with care, and not a flaw in it The bowyer scrutinized it with the connoisseur's knowing eye found it perfect, laid it up to season And for five years—dream of it—for five long years that billet passed from stage to stage, slowly hand worked into a bow Then yet another year it was tested and polished before I could have it From the strongly wrought horn nock tips to the green plush handle midway between, it is a comfort to look upon You might well call it a sonnet in wood A hickory bow, indeed, and an Indian archer! With this yew at 80 yards I shot 9 out of 11 arrows through a gourd eight inches in diameter —
